FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1922.

London finds its smallest house, opposite Kensington Palace gardens. Its street frontage is only six feet. The owner uses the ground floor for a shop, the cellar for cooking and eating and the second floor for a bedroom and living room. Is this the sort of domicile that civilized congestion is heading the majority of us toward? Steadily mounting land values imprison us in smaller and smaller metropolitan cells. Yet it is only a few generations since nearly every one could afford a large yard. Before the cells get smotheringly small, the airplane may break up the cities.

The movement to abolish tipping in Europe by including it in the bill has resulted only in paying tips at both ends of the line. It takes something more than a resolution to abolish an abuse of that kind—fundamental training in character being a prime requisite. A few boy scout troops in Europe would accomplish more than all the hotelkeepers in the world can do.

Every nine minutes a baby is born in New York city. Verily, in this great world of ours, where a sucker is born at every click of the clock, it is gratifying to know that only about one sucker out of ten is born in New York city—we thought the percentage was greater.

The world may have some serious problems, but one of the most serious is what to do with bobbed hair, while it is growing out.

ONE BIG MILK UNION FOR NEW ENGLAND

Proposed to Merge All Co-operative Organizations and Kill All Competition.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 10.—One great milk company, the largest in New England, owned, managed and controlled by the farmers, was the prospect held out to the district presidents of the New England Milk Producers' association at a meeting in the chamber of commerce Wednesday evening. The big prospect was contained in a report of the special marketing committee, which has been studying the problem of the milk producers for 11 months. It was discussed fully by the farmers and adopted as a general plan for the future.

The big farmers' milk company is to be brought about through joining together in some way the great co-operative organizations already in the field including the great Turner Center system in Maine, the Plymouth Creamery system in New Hampshire and the co-operative creameries in Vermont, also numerous smaller projects of a similar nature. The union of these present co-operative organizations would immediately bring in to being the largest milk company doing business in New England. It is the expectation that with the addition of units to be organized around the lesser city markets like Springfield and Worcester the company would have a very large growth within a year or two.

In the opinion of the committee making these recommendations, the plan of bringing the existing co-operatives together is the first step in a New England wide organization to include all dairy farmers. Under the careful wording of the committee report is a veiled threat that if other groups of farmers in a co-operative organization or the dealers who are now handling the milk fail to fall in line with this new and progressive step in milk marketing, they will be open to a competition which would in time absorb them into the general organization.

Reading beneath the surface of the report it is clear that unless the farmers who supply the Springfield market and other Southern New England markets, organize promptly and efficiently they will be subject to a hard competition from the big general co-operative group. On the other hand if the existing co-operatives in Northern New England cannot see the wisdom of coming together in one organization, they will find that in a very short time they will be practically shut out of the Southern New England market by the organization of local farmers.

BURGLAR DOW CAUGHT AFTER LONG FREEDOM

Prisoner Who Escaped From Windsor Two Years Ago Is Nabbed In Bay State.

Windsor, Nov. 10.—After wandering around the country for more than two years, living under an alias and taking unto himself a wife, Charles W. Dow, a man about 25 years of age, who was serving a year's sentence in Windsor prison for burglary, will be returned to his cell to serve the balance of his term and then face a charge of breaking jail.

Dow took French leave of the institution August 23, 1920, and has not been heard from until Wednesday when he was arrested in East Somerville, Mass., where he had recently started housekeeping with his young wife and nine-months-old daughter.

The man's escape from confinement after he had served four months of the 12 given him, was a carefully planned stroke which completely hoodwinked the prison officials. He chose a Sunday afternoon for his departure and, having collected some clothing, he constructed a dummy and placed it in his bed after which he went into the yard with the other prisoners for exercise.

When the shades of night fell the guard made the rounds of the cells and, seeing what he supposed to be Dow in his bed, no alarm was taken. The latter, however, had not come back into the shadow of the grey walls with his fellows but had hidden in some bushes. After dark he made off and was not missed until morning.

According to his story to the Somerville police, he went to Virginia from Windsor, married and then served for a time in the army. His name while in the southern state is said to have been Charles Whitcomb. He went to Somerville some time ago and worked in the East Somerville shops of the Boston & Maine as a machine helper. Mrs. Dow and the baby joined him a week ago.

Warden J. W. McDevitt said that Dow would be immediately put to work for the rest of his term when he will face the charge of breaking jail.

Hint for Amateur Painters.

When painting or varnishing soft wood, always first paint the wood with shellac and let it dry before painting or varnishing. This saves about half the paint and gives a much harder and smoother surface to the wood.
